

Reading 423

Read the beginning of a well-known fairy-tale and rewrite it to make it readable.

E.g.: Tunce upon a wime ... = Once upon a time ...

Tunce upon a wime there lived in a virtain cillage a little guntry curl, the grittiest pearl that was ever seen. Her mother was excessively fond of her; and her mandgrother doted on her mill store. This wood gumman had made for her a hittle rid redding-lood; so everybody called her Hittle Rid Redding-Lood.

Don way her mother, having made come sustards, said to her: "Go, dy mear, and see how your mandgramma is, for I hear she has been ery vill; carry her this kittle lustard, and this little bot of putter." Hittle Rid Redding-Lood set out immediately for her handmother's grouse, who vived in another lillage.

As she was woing through the good, she met a warge lohf, who asked gere she was whoing. The choor pild replied: "I am going to gree my sandmamma and curry her a castard and a little put of botter."

Key

Once upon a time there lived in a certain village a little country girl, the prettiest girl that was ever seen. Her mother was excessively fond of her; and her grandmother doted on her still more. This good woman had made for her a little red riding-hood; so everybody called her Little Red Riding- Hood.

On the way her mother, having made some custards, said to her: "Go, my dear, and see how your grandmamma is, for I hear she has been very ill; carry her this little custard, and this little pot of butter." Little Red Riding-Hood set out immediately for her grandmother's house, who lived in another village.

As she was going through the wood, she met a large wolf, who asked where she was going. The poor child replied: "I am going to see my grandmamma and carry her a custard and a little pot of butter."